DETAILED ACTION

Applicant's response to restriction requirement of 2/9/10 is entered.

Claims 1-97 are presently pending.

Election/Restrictions

Applicant's election of Group XXVI, and the species of fibroblasts in the reply filed on 2/9/10 is acknowledged. Because applicant did not distinctly and specifically point out the supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election has been treated as an election without traverse (MPEP § 818.03(a)).

Claims 1-85, 87-93, and 97 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected inventions, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in the reply filed on 2/9/10.

Claims 95 and 96 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected species, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in the reply filed on 2/9/10.

Claims 86 and 94 are presently considered for the elected species of fibroblasts.

Drawings

Figures 1D, A-D are objected to because the drawing contains letters below the 1/8th inch minimum required.

Figure 6D is objected to because it is black and cannot be interpreted.

Drawings 7A and 7B are objected to for not being labelled thusly.

Art Unit: 1633

In addition, it is noted that Applicant has supplied several pictures. While the Examiner has not been able to determine if such pictures are in color, Applicant is requested to comply with the requirements for publication of color drawings (MPEP 608.01(f)).

Specification

The specification is objected to for not listing Figure 3D in the initial statement of figures described in paragraph 17.

Claim Objections

Claims 86 and 94 are objected-to for being dependent from a withdrawn claim.

However, for purposes of substantial consideration, the limitations of the base claim will be read into the elected claims.

Double Patenting

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the “right to exclude” granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. A nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting rejection is appropriate where the conflicting claims are not identical, but at least one examined application claim is not patentably distinct from the reference claim(s) because the examined application claim is either anticipated by, or would have been obvious over, the reference claim(s). See, e.g., In re Berg, 140 F.3d 1428, 46 USPQ2d 1226 (Fed. Cir. 1998); In re

Art Unit: 1633

Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) or 1.321(d) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent either is shown to be commonly owned with this application, or claims an invention made as a result of activities undertaken within the scope of a joint research agreement.

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 86 and 94 are rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1, 19, 34 and 35, and all claims generically of U.S. Patent No. 6,124,620. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the patent teaches methods of altering cellular excitability, by transforming the cell with a construct, which may be a lentivirus vector. However, the specification makes clear that forms of connexin are taught as proteins which may be expressed by the construct (e.g., Paragraph 10 of the Detailed Description) and fibroblasts are one type of cell to transform (e.g., ABSTRACT). Hence, it would be obvious to perform the claimed method. The Artisan would do so because the patent teaches the steps of the overall method, and the patent's specification teaches the species encompassed by generic aspects claimed, which species anticipate the presently-claimed invention. Moreover, the Artisan would have a reasonable expectation of success, as the patent teaches such.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 86 and 94 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent No. 7,317,950 to Lee.

Lee claims cardiac stimulation systems (Claim 1), which comprise fibroblasts (Claim 20), adapted to express connexin (Claim 21). The specification teaches that one construct to express the connexin is a lenti-virus (Section entitled “Constructs for Connexin Nucleic Acids, paragraph 3).

Hence, Claims 86 and 94 are anticipated by Lee. The method is taught for making claimed cardiac stimulation system embodiments. Moreover, because the intended use of the claimed systems is for transplantation, as taught in the specification, even the claimed use (which for the record is not required to anticipate the claims) is also anticipated.

Conclusion

No claim is allowed.
